Hon Stanley NG's motion on “Protecting the mental health of employees”

Wording of the Motion

That some studies have pointed out that over one quarter of employees in Hong Kong have mental health issues (e.g. anxiety and depression) attributable to work pressure; however, the existing occupational safety and health legislation has failed to provide adequate protection for the mental health of employees; in this connection, this Council urges the Government to study enacting legislation to protect the mental health of employees and adopt proactive measures to provide support services.
