30 July, 2026	1. Biodiversity II Located in a subtropical region, Hong Kong enjoys valuable geographical features—mountainous terrain and extensive coastline—and distinct seasons. They together nurture a rich variety of natural habitats, providing homes for a wide range of flora and fauna. Following the release of the “Biodiversity” special stamps in 2010, Hongkong Post will issue a set of four stamps on the theme of “Biodiversity II” to showcase the city’s distinctive biodiversity, with a view to raising the public’s awareness of ecological conservation and inspiring their collaboration in protecting our natural treasures.
20 August, 2026	2. Hong Kong Past and Present Series: Kowloon City District The Kowloon City District boasts a rich historical and cultural heritage and has undergone tremendous changes over the past few decades. Once home to the legendary Kowloon Walled City, the district has ushered in significant development opportunities since the relocation of Kai Tak Airport to Chek Lap Kok in 1998. Following the successive completion of the Kai Tak Cruise Terminal and the Kai Tak Sports Park, the Kowloon City District will host more international and national sporting events, further boosting the development of local tourism. Hongkong Post will issue a set of four stamps on the theme of “Hong Kong Past and Present Series: Kowloon City District”, setting out with the public on a journey through time to savour the past and present of the Kowloon City District as well as its changing landscape.

3. Lingnan Craftsmanship – Guangcai (The Canton Famille Rose Porcelain) Making Technique

Guangcai, the shortened form of “Guangzhou painted porcelain” or “Canton Famille Rose Porcelain”, is one of the traditional crafts of Lingnan culture. The Guangcai making technique was inscribed onto the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Hong Kong in 2024. The technique dates back to the early Qing dynasty and was transmitted from Guangzhou to Hong Kong in the 1920s. In addition to conserving the traditional hand-painting technique and auspicious patterns, Guangcai produced in Hong Kong also incorporated local painting techniques and special motifs, hence the name Gangcai (“Hong Kong painted porcelain”). Hongkong Post will issue special stamps on the theme of “Guangcai Making Technique” to promote Lingnan craftsmanship and local intangible cultural heritage, showcasing the ingenuity of Hong Kong artisans that has been passed down through generations.

4. 24 Solar Terms – Winter

Inscribed onto the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization’s Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity in 2016, the “24 Solar Terms” of the Chinese calendar reflect the change in seasons and meteorological patterns. Subsequent to the “24 Solar Terms – Spring”, “24 Solar Terms – Summer” and “24 Solar Terms – Autumn” special stamps issued in 2020, 2023 and 2025 respectively, Hongkong Post will issue special stamps themed on “24 Solar Terms – Winter”, featuring six solar terms of winter, namely “Winter Commences”, “Light Snow”, “Heavy Snow”, “Winter Solstice”, “Moderate Cold” and “Severe Cold”. As the final episode of the “24 Solar Terms” series, this special stamp set marks the successful completion of the entire four seasons stamp collection.

5. Development of Chinese Medicine in Hong Kong

As a treasure of Chinese culture, Chinese medicine has a long history in disease prevention and treatment as well as health preservation and has made a significant contribution to safeguarding people's health. With the implementation of various policy measures, and the successive commissioning of the Chinese Medicine Hospital of Hong Kong and the Government Chinese Medicines Testing Institute, Chinese medicine has become an important integral part of Hong Kong's healthcare system. Hongkong Post will release a set of four stamps and one stamp sheetlet on the theme of "Development of Chinese Medicine in Hong Kong" to showcase key milestones in the development of Chinese medicine in Hong Kong.
